Fed By Trade
Food Must Move to Feed a Hungry World

Certain geographies are endowed by nature with fertile soil, plentiful rain and ample sunshine needed to produce food surpluses.

Trade flows depicted are representation of key global food flows and are not inclusive of all flows from origination to destination markets.

Sources: UN FAO, USDA, ScienceDirect, Cargill Internal data

Fed By Trade™

1 in 7 people worldwide depend on global trade for their basic food needs.

When Food Flows Freely

Trade helps feed the world, opening access to a dependable, affordable and nutritious supply of food.

When Food Flows Freely

Trade connects our economies and feeds our communities.

Trade connects our economies and feeds our communities.

Trade helps feed the world, opening access to a dependable, affordable and nutritious supply of food.

Food must move to where it is needed, when it is needed — across countries, continents and oceans.

Most population growth between now and 2050 will be in developing countries.

In 2050
70% of the population will be urban.

At any one time, Cargill operates 650 vessels across the world’s oceans.

Nearly 20% of the food produced in the world crosses international borders.

Barley, corn, palm oil, grapeseed meal, rice, soybean meal, soy beans, soybean oil, sorghum, wheat, sunflower seeds/meal/oil, feed equivalent of meat-net interregional in thousands of metric tons.

When Food Flows Freely

Trade helps feed the world, opening access to a dependable, affordable and nutritious supply of food.

When Food Flows Freely

Trade connects our economies and feeds our communities.

Trade connects our economies and feeds our communities.

Trade helps feed the world, opening access to a dependable, affordable and nutritious supply of food.

Food must move to where it is needed, when it is needed — across countries, continents and oceans.

Nearly 20% of the food produced in the world crosses international borders.

Barley, corn, palm oil, grapeseed meal, rice, soybean meal, soy beans, soybean oil, sorghum, wheat, sunflower seeds/meal/oil, feed equivalent of meat-net interregional in thousands of metric tons.

When Food Flows Freely

Trade helps feed the world, opening access to a dependable, affordable and nutritious supply of food.

When Food Flows Freely

Trade connects our economies and feeds our communities.

Trade connects our economies and feeds our communities.

Trade helps feed the world, opening access to a dependable, affordable and nutritious supply of food.

Food must move to where it is needed, when it is needed — across countries, continents and oceans.