

Commitment in the present for a future brimming
with opportunities

Whoever
implements 3S,
produces sustainably

3S results from Cargill's investment in reinforcing its commitment to producers and recognizing its efforts to create and maintain a more sustainable production chain.

Together with producers, we are committed to deforestation-free, fully traceable production that promotes best agricultural practices, ensures the well-being of workers and the local community, and contributes to building a better future for all.

How does it work?

The program is based on three interconnected links that guide each process stage.

Partnership with producers

We are aware of the challenges faced by producers and support them in creating more efficient processes that promote continuous farm improvement.

Responsible production

We are committed to reducing our environmental impact and ensuring the well-being of our workers. That is why our actions consider the principles of sustainable land use, good agricultural practices and the management of greenhouse gas emissions.

Market recognition

Our verification creates value for the market, both for buyers and end consumers. In this way, we are working to become a benchmark program with national and international recognition.
